

ex microcell 4.0

defining the perfect dry suit...

Apollo's new EX Microcell 4.0 redefines the standard for scuba diving dry suits. This new material and hardware combines all the advantages of a conventional wetsuit with the added warmth factor of a dry suit. Achieving a warmth, flexibility, and ease of use never before found in dry suits.

Thicker neoprene is unnecessary, harder to move in and requires you to wear more weight when diving. While 4.0 microcell is a little more expensive to procure and work with; it is the best material for a dry suit. Apollo employs an advanced third generation computer-aided design system and state-of-the-art manufacturing plant in Japan to achieve consistent quality and uniformity in all suits regardless of thickness or design.

The new EX Microcell 4.0 dry suits are the most advanced and user friendly suits available. Perfect for the first time dry suit owner as well as the experienced looking for performance.

Microcell is a thinner material that provides the thermal efficiency equivalent of a much thicker suit. You are wrapped in warmth but still able to swim, bend, and move with ease. The EX Microcell 4.0 is also extremely versatile. Perfect with swim attire in temperate waters, or wear it with a polartech TM type under garment in cooler temperatures.

Apollo's innovative patented ankle and shoulder exhaust valves assure safety and do away with complicated procedures. Air no longer traps in boots which frees you from the stress and fatigue of cumbersome ankle weights. Buoyancy control and body positioning become a breeze.

The EX Microcell 4.0 adds confidence, safety, and comfort, expanding the limits of recreational diving.
